Ostrava of Boletaria

NOW LOADING

Ostrava of Boletaria

You meet this young knight by saving him from certain death inside the gates of the Boletarian Castle. His fine equipment marks him as a person of quality.

Selen Vinland

NOW LOADING

Selen Vinland

Like many knights, Selen Vinland of the highlands has braved the fog, but her agenda is personal: she seeks her brother Garl Vinland, who has not been seen since accompanying Saint Astraea into Boletaria.

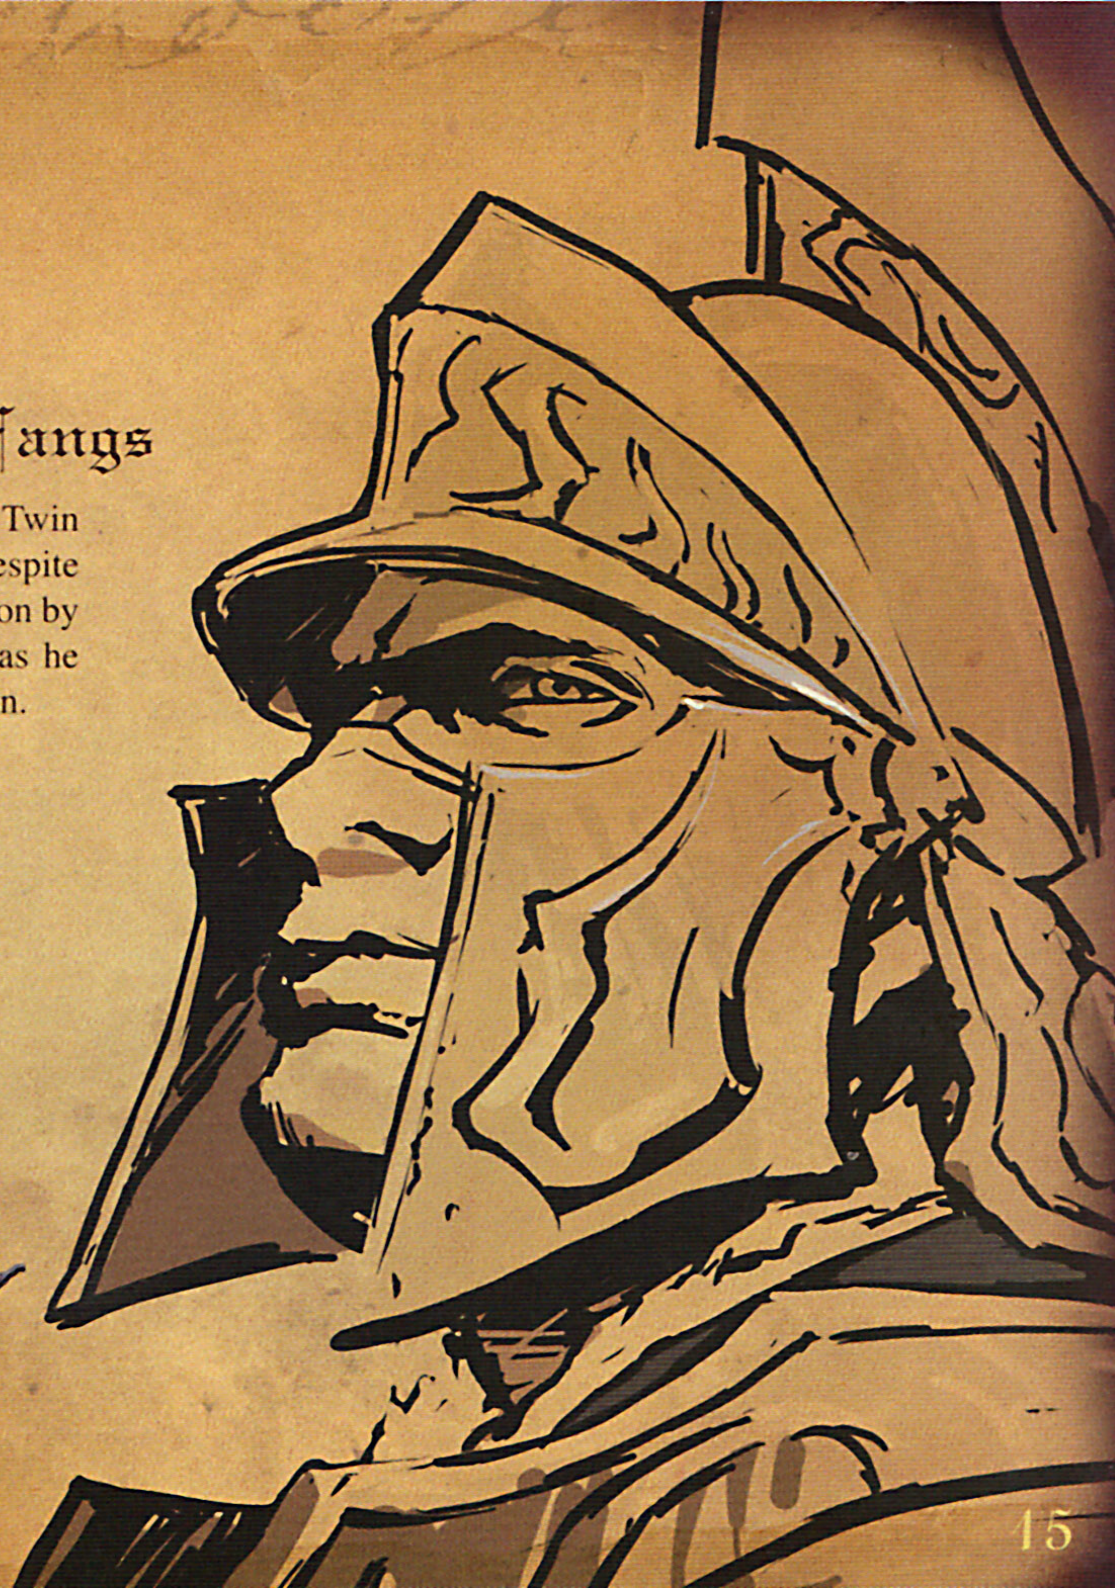

Biorr of the Twin Fangs

Biarr of the Twin Fangs

He and Vallarfax make up the elite duo of the Twin Fangs, who remain loyal to King Allant despite rumors that the current tragedy was brought on by the King. His courage remains undimmed as he helps you fight off the demons now and again.

Executioner Miralda

NOW LOADING

Executioner Miralda

This eccentric woman serves as the King's own executioner. Her Guillotine Axe has been put to new use severing the demons of Boletaria from their Souls.

Yurt, the Silent Chief

NOW LOADING

 Vurt, the Silent Chief

An assassin sent to Boletaria to rid it of any who have managed to hold on to their sanity. A good deed done for him will not go unpunished...

Sage Freke, the Visionary

NOW LOADING

Sage Freke

This renowned visionary is known for his scholarly approach to the Soul arts. Though advanced in years, he decided to enter Boletaria alone.

Yuria, the Witch

NOW LOADING

Vuria

This witch has been imprisoned somewhere in Boletaria for her dabblings in darker arts than Sage Freke's. She has repented of her sorcery, but is willing to teach it to others who ask.

Garl Vinland

A loyal follower of the Saint Astraea, he was last seen accompanying her on their way to the Valley of Defilement. He relies on his Dark Silver Armor to protect him from all evil.

Saint Astraea

She is a pure soul who has gone into the Valley of Defilement to help the wretched and the suffering who dwell there. Neither she nor her bodyguard Garl Vinland have been seen since they entered the fog.

Valley of Defilement

Boletarian Castle

(Early concept)

Double-Winged Hawk

In flight, it should be beautiful and majestic, but also ferocious and wild. Its main wings are noticeably larger than its body, with a wingspan of 500cm.

The sub-wings for gliding are about this size to balance the main wings out. They look a bit weak compared to the main wings, and the feathers aren't entirely proportioned either, like an underdeveloped fledgeling's wings. They will eventually become vestigial and disappear as the species evolves. The sub-wings are only for gliding, so they don't move as much as the main wings.

Dirty Colossus

(Early name: Fly-Ridden Demon)

Composed of the main body
and a swarm of fly demons.

Mainly found around fly nests
and rotting areas.

Countless flies are swarming about.

The flies are there as support
for the colossus.

Storm King

Found in the lower level of the Shrine of Storms.

The wings are atrophied, but their thumbs are abnormally developed.

The mask gradually gives way to a grey mane.

An old man's head that has become a mask.

The base of the wings and tail is scarred as if they were welded on.

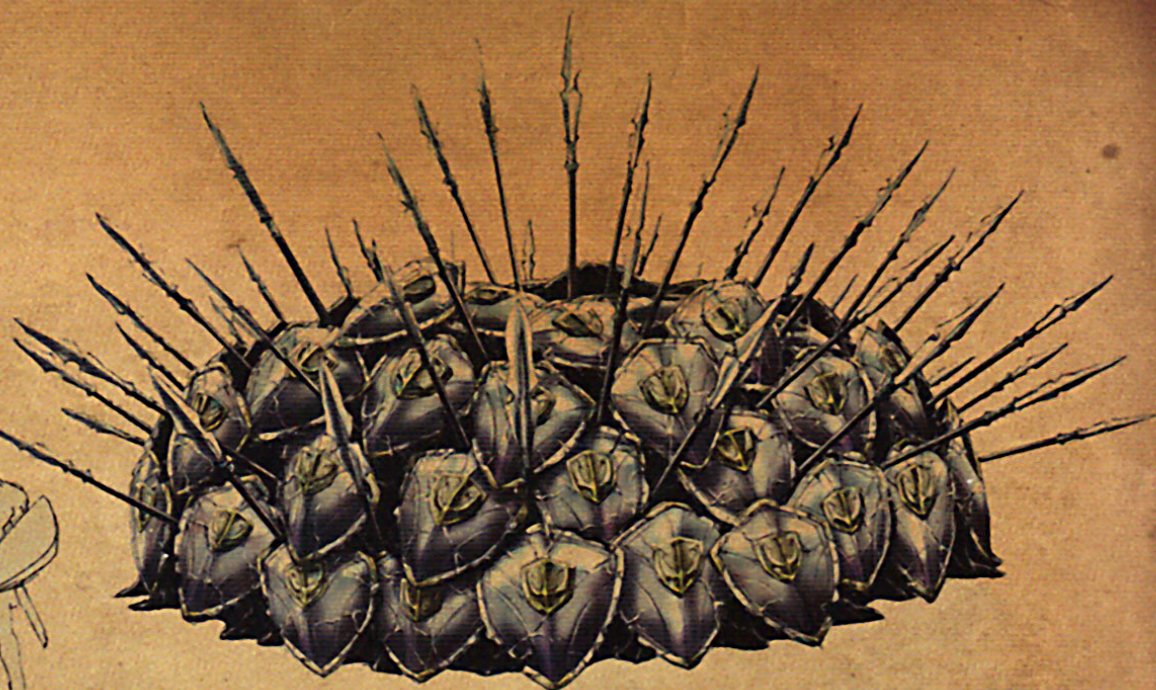

Maneater

All limbs (especially the legs) are covered in coarse fur.

Mhalanx

Whether each one has a spear or not can vary.

The shield is cracked here and there;
strong white light shines from between the cracks.

- Each individual part has a black slime
body equipped with a shield and spear.

The spear is pierced through the slime body.

The edges of the shield are partly melted and is welded on to the body.

Single Form

Primehal Demon

(Early name: Mineral Spirit)

Slimy, fatty skin

Adjudicator

Blacksmith Baldwin

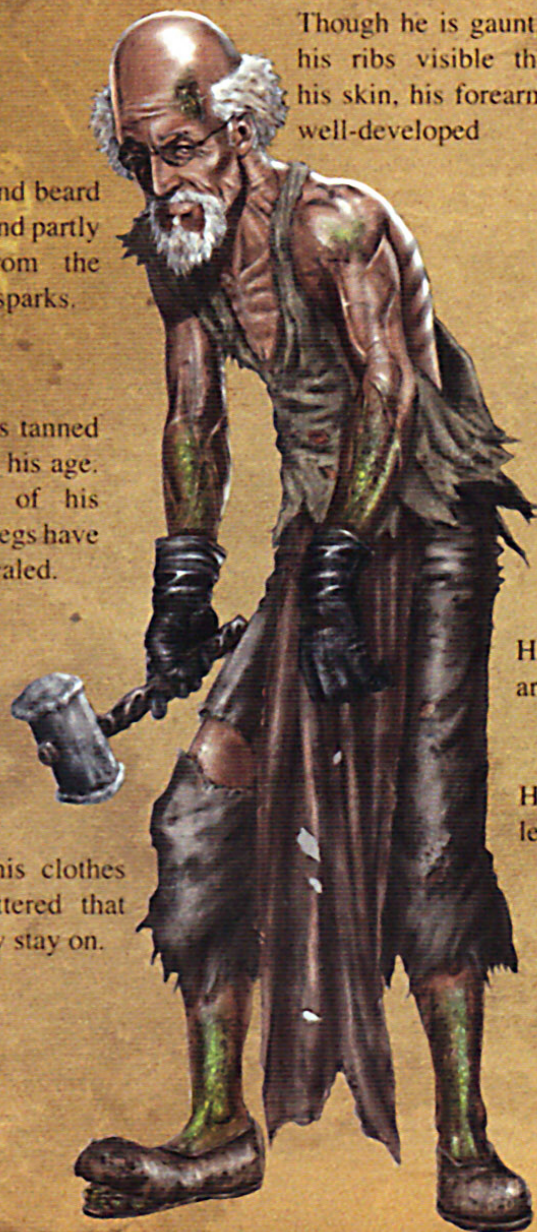

He wears goggles to protect his eyes from the the strong light of the furnace, but one of the lenses is broken off and the other is cracked. The frame is also bent.

Though he is gaunt, with his ribs visible through his skin, his forearms are well-developed

His hair and beard are dirty and partly singed from the furnace's sparks.

His skin is tanned and fit for his age. The tips of his arms and legs have become scaled.

Most of his clothes are so tattered that they barely stay on.

His leather gloves are very worn.

His apron is made of leather.

Fat Official

He wears a black leather uniform and a leather vest above it. The overall color scheme is black.

The front of the leather vest is engraved with designs and lettering.

Dregling

Low-ranking slave soldiers, scarred from combat and abuse. They receive very little treatment. They wear makeshift armor made from scraps and pieces of wood used to fix regular soldiers' weapons.

The tattered chest area is fortified with metal and rivets for added protection. Other areas are covered in rags, leather scraps, and quilted fabric.

Grim Reaper

Eyes: Bizarre look; has vertically oriented human eyes.

Generally moist looking. Its heavy, moldy robe covers the whole body. The sleeves and bottom are long and dragging.

Elongated arms

Monumental

Despite its young body, its eyes have an air of inscrutable tranquility, as though it can see great distances through its half-open eyes. Its hooded eyelids are modeled after those commonly seen in Buddhist statues.

To depict its saintly purity, it has the face of an innocent child, though its skin texture is dried to depict the passing of time.

Its clothing is a clean off-white linen that isn't soiled or stained. Within its all-white robes, different materials give slightly different shades. It's a simple style, but it gives it a worldly feel.
